First Quarter 2025 Cross-Asset Review

A turbulent first quarter was marked by uncertainty over President Trump's tariff policies, the corresponding economic impact, and the unexpected release of competitive, lower-cost Chinese AI models. The MSCI World Index fell 1.8% in USD, led by the "Magnificent 7," which suffered one of their worst quarters on record. International equities (MSCI EAFE +6.9% USD) outperformed, bolstered by improving economic conditions and a historic shift in German fiscal policy to release its debt brake, paving the way for €500B in new spending. Foreign currencies strengthened against the US dollar (DXY Index -3.9%) as concerns over President Trump's protectionist actions contributed to a narrowing of growth and interest rate differentials. Bonds (Barclay's Global Agg +2.6%) were resilient, with escalating recession fears driving a flight to safety and sending treasury yields lower. Commodities (S&P GSCI +3.4%) benefitted from the unstable policy and geopolitical landscape, which pushed gold and US copper futures to record highs.

Equities: US stocks (MSCI USA -4.6%) declined as uncertainty over President Trump's trade policies has caused investors to question the post-election optimism surrounding US economic exceptionalism. The weakness in US equities was exacerbated by a 15% drawdown in the "Magnificent 7," as new AI products from China, notably DeepSeek, challenged the high expectations embedded in these stocks. European equities (MSCI Europe +10.5% USD, +6.2% local FX) outperformed US stocks by the largest margin in nearly 40 years. European stocks were supported by improving economic data, positive corporate earnings revisions, and clear signals from policymakers about taking meaningful steps to stimulate growth. Conversely, Japanese (MSCI Japan) equities fell 4.5% in yen terms (+0.3% USD) due to fears that Trump's tariffs would impair their export-driven economy.

Emerging markets (MSCI EM +2.9% USD) benefitted from robust gains in China (MSCI China +15.0% USD) and Brazil (MSCI Brazil +14.0% USD), offsetting declines in India (MSCI India -3.0% USD). Chinese stocks rallied on the back of additional government stimulus measures and a tech sector that has been reinvigorated following local AI developments. Brazilian equities recovered due to optimism about improved fiscal stability, while Indian stocks were pressured by lackluster corporate earnings and moderating government spending.

First Quarter 2025 Cross-Asset Review (cont'd)

Currencies: Narrowing growth and interest rate differentials between the US and non-US economies supported broad-based foreign currency appreciation against the US dollar. The impact was particularly profound in Europe (euro +4.3% v. USD), where improving economic conditions were bolstered by pledges for substantial fiscal support. In Japan, the yen (+5.1% v. USD) benefitted from rising inflation, higher rates, and diverging monetary policies vis-à-vis the US. The Turkish lira and Indonesian rupiah were among the few currencies to depreciate against the greenback, falling 6.8% and 2.8%, respectively. The lira slumped after Turkish President Erdogan detained his main political rival, while the rupiah approached its lowest level since the Asian financial crisis over fears of a return to military domination. Cryptocurrencies (Bitcoin -11.7%, Ethereum -45.4%) plummeted, driven by their procyclical speculative nature.

Bonds: US bonds (Barclays US Agg +2.8%) rallied, with yields falling along the curve as uncertainty over tariffs increased fears of a recession. The flight to safety contributed to demand for US treasuries, pushing US 10-year (-36 bps to 4.2%) yields lower. In contrast, longer-duration yields climbed considerably in both Europe and Japan. In Europe, Germany's shocking policy change to release their debt brake and approve €500B in new government spending propelled 10-year sovereign yields higher (+34 bps to 2.7%). 10-year Japanese government bonds (+43 bps to 1.5%) surged to their highest level since the GFC, as escalating inflationary pressures drove expectations of further policy tightening from the BoJ.

Commodities: Precious metals (GSCI Precious Metals +19.2%) led the major commodity indices. Gold surged 18.8%, reaching a record $3,122/ozt, as investors sought safe-haven assets amid concerns over tariffs, rising fiscal deficits, and geopolitical instability. Industrial metals (GSCI Ind. Metals +4.7%) were bolstered by a 26% rise in copper futures prices, breaching record levels, as US companies stockpiled in advance of expected tariffs. US natural gas (+33% to $4.1/mbtmu) surged as high demand from cold weather and LNG exports depleted inventories. Agricultural (GSCI Agg -1.7%) commodities experienced mixed results, driven by idiosyncratic factors. Orange juice prices plummeted 51% on demand concerns, while egg prices sank 35% as supply recovered from a bird flu outbreak that has killed over 165 million chickens since 2022. Coffee prices rose 18.6% to $382/lb, hitting all-time highs, due to a fourth consecutive season of adverse weather impacting supply.
